

K I N O R A

WATCH IT CATCH ON.

THE FIRST PRODUCT BILLBOARD

AD FOR MARS.

ZHIYU (LESLEY) LIU

INDEPENDENT CONCEPT PROJECT

KINORA

NEXT DOOR

Watch it catch on.

THE IMAGINED WORLD

For them, Mars is simply home.

I imagined Mars a few generations into settlement.

The first crews came to survive. Their grandchildren grew up here.

Now there are neighbourhoods, schools, shops, rent and rush hour. An extraordinary place has become ordinary life.

A familiar light at every front door.

In this world, each home has a dust lock.

It removes dust before residents step inside.

A round red status light glows while the cycle runs.

This familiar detail becomes the campaign device.

THE DUST-LOCK STATUS LIGHT

A place to live. More stories to share.

The concept builds on ordinary Martian life: familiar routines that entertainment can reflect. Shared stories can give residents more moments to recognise, repeat and make their own.

01 SHARED STORIES

Stories people watch together

02 SHARED REFERENCES

Moments people recognise

03 SHARED CULTURE

A language of daily life

04 BELONGING

A place that feels like yours

A habitat gives people somewhere to live. Shared culture makes it home.

KINORA ORIGINAL

NEXT DOOR

Season 1 · Episode 1

Two roommates. One shared airlock. A life on Mars.

Stories made on Mars. For life on Mars.

KINORA is the fictional brand I created.

An entertainment platform with films, series and originals rooted in Martian life, including work from local creators.

The aim: turn familiar experiences into stories people can share.

KINORA makes the stories.
Mars makes the culture.

THE IDEA

Watch it catch on.

Entertainment can create shared references.

The concept brings a screen moment into public life.

CATCH ON 01

To understand a joke or reference.

CATCH ON 02

To become popular and spread from person to person.

ONE SMALL SCREEN MOMENT DOES BOTH.

ON SCREEN

ONLINE

AT WORK

IN PUBLIC

THE FICTIONAL SCENE / NEXT DOOR

The scene behind it

For NEXT DOOR, I imagined two roommates waiting.

One aligns her nose with the light as the dust lock runs.

A glowing red nose, just to make her roommate smile.

How it could spread

Launch clips would introduce the scene and invite viewers to recreate the gesture at home. These mockups imagine how it could spread online, among friends and beyond the show's audience.

ONLINE

WITH FRIENDS

Viewers could turn the scene into a shared joke.

AT WORK

The gesture could reach people beyond the audience.

THE BILLBOARD

The light goes public

01 THE LIGHT

A familiar dust-lock window and red light invite people to recreate the scene.

02 THE LINE

NEXT DOOR.

Watch it catch on.

03 THE PLATFORM

KINORA Original.

Now streaming.

Fans recognise the reference.

Others can discover the show.

PUBLIC PROMENADE

ARCADIA DISTRICT

KINORA / MARS BILLBOARD

The rationale

01

It fits this world.

An everyday detail of the setting becomes the creative device.

The world informs the idea.

02

It rewards viewers.

Fans of the fictional show would recognise the gesture.

Recognition invites involvement.

03

It invites participation.

The billboard provides the light.
People would complete the idea.
A simple gesture makes participation easy to imagine.

Stories become references. References become culture.

Culture makes a place feel like home.

K I N O R A

Watch it catch on.